

Q1a)

Approach:

1. Read Yelp review dataset as stated in the requirement.
2. Find all items and add them in a dictionary which the key is the item and value is the count of that item
3. Delete the item that does not meet the threshold requirement.
4. Sort the frequent item and sort it to make tuple using combinations()
5. Store the tuple into a dictionary
6. Read the file again and read it line by line
7. Sort the line and make tuples of size 2 using combinations() of this line
8. For each tuple made, if it is in the tuple dictionary, +1 to the count of the corresponding key
9. Repeat for each line
10. Sort the dictionary by the count and make a new list
11. Output the result

Code:

q0.py > ...
1 from collections import defaultdict
2 from itertools import combinations
4 s = 0.01
5 n = 2
6
7 # initialize
8 count = 0

12 # and process the frequent items for first time
13 with open("yelp_review_0_50000", 'r') as f:

Command:

Merge and sort time is negligible.

Conclude:

So for Q1b, the whole map reduce process is around 3m while Q1a takes 6m23s, around half the time.

Q1c)

Approach:

According to SON algorithm, all the subset of a frequent item triplet must also be frequent. In other words, it must contain all the possible pairs in the frequent item pairs. So I just need to find all the pairs that are (A,B) (B,C) and make them (A,B,C) and store it to cache for job2.

Job 2 is simple and straight forward.
